Subject: Disgruntled Employee

On Saturday, I found it necessary to again discuss issues with Joe Smith regarding his responsibilities to the company and his use of company resources during normal business hours. I have had recurrent discussions with Joe regarding his job responsibilities and his inability to stay focused on his job. I have reminded Joe several times that he needs to take care of those individuals that are in need of his help in a timely manner. Joe has taken full advantage of the freedom his job provides him to the point that I no longer have confidence in his completing the tasks he is assigned. He has clearly placed his job in jeopardy. At this point I have placed Joe on notice that if he continues to disregard the requirements of his job we will have no choice but to terminate his employment.

At this point, knowing Joe is responsible for our IT infrastructure, I am fearful that he will be somewhat disgruntled and may cause some issue in our IT infrastructure. It is my opinion that we need a way to track all employee system access and what they do on our systems. If I may suggest we look into an endpoint security system.

Management Instructions:

You need to determine the best solution for tracking employee's access to all systems.,

You will need to upload a quick summary report outlining what solution you've chosen, why you chose it, and how you've implemented it in our environment to the Blue Team Portal or to share point.

This should be no longer than 3 pages.

Thank you.
